

THE PAGE

ART OF ALOHA Hawaii welcomes visitors back

- › Museums make an impression
- › 10 Texas dining destinations

The lion's den

Young, sexy style fills contractor's new home

Story by DIANE COWEN • Photography by MICHAEL HUNTER

Josh Weisman had built enough modern, sexy clubs and restaurants to know what he wanted when it came time to build his house. He knew how to dream. The home he and his wife, Trisha, built in Braes Heights is sleek and stylish, full of edgy design and high-contrast black and white.

For the past 10 years, his Construction Concepts company has built or built out some 400 restaurants and bars in the Houston area. His projects include 51fifteen at Sak's Fifth Avenue, Ume Sushi in the Heights and Doris Metropolitan on South Shepherd.

Every now and then he gets a knock on the door from a curious neighbor or passerby who watched his house go up wondering if he has time for another project.

TRISHA AND JOSH WEISMAN AND THEIR SON, SAGE.

